POWERFUL FROSH TEAM SWEEPS OVER VERMONT; WINS 27-0

Willis and Henry Are Main Cogs of Versatile Attack

MANY LONG RUNS FURNISH THRILLS

Green and Gold Outclassed; Take First Defeat of Season

Displaying a snappy, aggressive attack that was in every respect superior to that of their opponents, the Black Panther Cubs swept to a decisive victory over the University of Vermont freshmen in the objective game of the season for both teams, played here on Saturday. The final score was 27 to 0, the result of four touchdowns, each of which was a well-earned one for the the Green and Gold yearlings fought sturdily to defend their goal. For the first three quarters the Blue defense was impregnable, holding the opposition close to its own goal line continuously, but in the closing minutes of the game Vermont after intercepting a forward pass started an advance that the frosh seemed unable to check. However, the final whistle blew with the ball still seven yards from the last white line.

Coach Riegelman's team showed a versatile attack which was only hampered at times by penalties, caused by overeagerness on the part of the linesmen. Especially outstanding was the work of Willis and Henry in the backfield. Willis, who starred with the Goddard Seminary eleven last fall, seemed able to crash the line consistently for long gains. His defensive work was also of a good calibre. Henry skirted the ends for several long gains and plowed through the line in spite of his light weight. He scored two of his team's touchdowns. In the line, Captain Webber and "Red" Allen starred, breaking through the Vermont line many times to throw the backs for losses. Stevens played well at end, his nice catch of a long pass in the second quarter putting his team in scoring position. However, his offsides retarded the team's progress several times.

The Panther Cubs started off well right at the beginning when they threw Vermont for two big losses. After receiving a punt, an offensive drive was immediately started which ended only when a touchdown had been scored. The first big step of the drive was made by Henry who raced through a wide hole in the line and, following perfect interference, went nearly forty yards before he was stopped. A succession of line bucks with Willis doing most of the work, brought the ball close to the line and Henry took it over.

In the second quarter, after several rushes and a punt by Vermont, Middlebury obtained possession of the ball at midfield. After a first down and two line bucks, a twenty-five yard pass to Stevens placed the cubs in a scoring position on the opponents five yard line. Al Henry smashed through center and across the goal line but the referee called the ball back and doled out a five yard penalty to Middlebury for offside. A criss-cross which followed this was broken up for a ten yard loss, after which Middlebury lost the ball on downs. A blocked kick, recovered by Middlebury across Vermont's goal line also failed to add to the cubs' score because of an offside. Vermont again kicked, this time successfully, to her own forty yard line. After several in-

FRATERNITY RUSHING IN FULL SWAY

Fraternity rushing on the men's side of the hill is in full sway this week. The six fraternities which are members of the Interfraternity Council began their active drive for members at noon Monday. Monday and Tuesday dates were made "catch-as-catch-can." Today and tomorrow dates are to be assigned through the interfraternity council while on Friday appointments between freshmen and fraternities are to be by selection. Saturday has been set for Pledge Day.

VARSITY FACES ST. STEPHEN'S ELEVEN

Second Home Game Will Be Close One; Opponents Are Strong

Another newcomer on the Middlebury gridiron schedule will be seen in action on Porter Field on Saturday afternoon when the Blue and White team meets the St. Stephens eleven from Annandale-On-Hudson in the first clash between these two institutions in several years.

The visitors, altho more or less of an unknown quantity until this year, have attracted considerable attention by the games they have played this fall and their showing has been a highly creditable one in every way. They held Bowdoin to a 7 to 6 score in their first game, and the following week held Wesleyan to the same score, and won over Trinity 6 to 0 the following week in Poughkeepsie. Their best game of the season was played against Williams two weeks ago when the Purple was lucky to escape with a scoreless tie. Last Saturday they were beaten 22 to 0 by the heavy St. John's team.

The St. Stephens team is a comparatively light aggregation but is fast and scrappy throughout. The main feature of their offense is an aerial attack that has worked with perfect results in all of their games thus far, and Coach Klevenow's team will, in all probability, find themselves confronted by a game similar to that put up by N.Y.U.

Deloria, a Sioux Indian, who plays fullback for St. Stephens is their outstanding star and is reputed to have considerable ability both as a punter and a shifty runner, and together with Harding, quarterback, and Stevens, right half, they make up a formidable trio.

KELLEY'S HARRIERS MEET R. P. I. NEXT

Run in Only Home Meet of Season Here on Saturday

Captain Kelley's harriers still have two hard meets on the schedule. Saturday the Blue meets R.P.I. in the only home meet of the season. In past years the Engineers have always had good teams and the meets with them have invariably been close. That the R.P.I. team is strong again this year is shown by the fact that it defeated Union last week 21 to 34. Coach Brown hopes to have all of his men in condition to run this week although there is some doubt as to whether Whiting's leg will be in condition to permit him to participate. Donald '28, who has been doing so well this season, is expected to make a strong bid to break the course record if weather conditions are favorable.

Manager Ross has completed arrangements for a meet against the University of Vermont harriers at Burlington on the morning of November 14, the day of the annual football game. The Vermont squad is of somewhat uncertain strength, for it has not participated in a meet this year.

Hat Scrap Saturday

An interesting five minutes is expected between the halves of the football game Saturday when the sophomores and freshmen have their annual hat-scrap. The hat for the contest has not yet been secured so watch out, professors!

FIRE RAZES DEWEY HALL AT NORWICH

Loss estimated at nearly fifty thousand dollars resulted when Dewey Hall, Norwich's principal administration building, was consumed by flames early last Saturday morning. Although the cause of the fire is not definitely known, it is believed that defective wiring was responsible. Several of the Cadets were overcome by smoke but no one was seriously injured.

The upper floor was entirely gutted by flames and the slate roof fell in before the fire was brought under control. Not a great deal of damage was done to the ground floor.

The loss may handicap Norwich seriously for a time for several of the offices and classrooms were situated in the burned building.

WILLIAMS HARRIERS DISTANCE BLUE PACK

Donald '28 Second to Crofts Of Williams In Very Close Finish

The Middlebury cross-crountry team lost its second meet of the season when it was defeated by Williams at Williamstown Saturday by the score of 36 to 19. Donald '28 did by far the best running for the Blue harriers, leading the pack all the way until the last hundred yards, when he was bested by Captain Crofts in a tight finish.

In spite of a sticky course, five of Middlebury's men finished in better time than "Doc" Cook '24 did in the Middlebury-Williams meet three years ago. The time for the race was within thirty seconds of the Taconia Club course record. Five of the Williams men were on last year's New England Inter-Collegiate championship team.

Middlebury was handicapped by the fact that Whiting was unable to run.

The winner was Croft (Williams), second, Donald (Middlebury). The remainder finished in the following order: McCulock, Adams, Hitchcock, Safford, Childs and Fessenden, of Williams; Dodd, Robinson, Lathrop, Arnold, Kelley and Stoughton of Middlebury.

HALLOWE'EN PARTY AT FRENCH CHATEAU

"A Night in Hades" In Store For Members of French Club

A very interesting event will take place Friday evening at eight o'clock in the Chateau when the French Club holds its annual Hallowe'en party. Plans have been made for "Une Soiree a l'Enfer," a night in Hades, but a Hades for pleasure.

Everyone is requested to appear as a ghost, clothed in a sheet, with a pillow-case for a cap, and a long white mask over the face, displaying the eyes only. Charon will meet the guests at the door, and upon payment of one cent, will carry them across the river Styx. In the course of the evening, there will be games of all sorts. A prize will be offered to that person who can guess the most names of the persons disguised as ghosts. Clever witches will prophecy the fates of those who are interested. Professor Huet will play the part of a magician, whose skillful acts nobody should fail to see.

All those who wish to enjoy the fascinating entertainment and the delicious refreshments which follow, should not forget the required costume, the admission of one cent, and a paper and pencil. Those who are not already members of the Cercle Francais may join by paying fifty cents for the annual dues to Howard Cutler '27 or to Harriett Miner '26.

BRILLIANT PASSING ATTACK GIVES 33-0 VICTORY TO N. Y. U.

Black Panther Line Holds Opposing Backs at a Standstill

CONTINUOUS RAIN MAKES BALL SOGGY

Four Touchdowns Come Via Air Route; One From Fumble

A powerful New York University eleven opened up a beautiful aerial attack Saturday and Middlebury was forced to a 33 to 0 defeat. Unable to gain through the big Blue line, the New Yorkers threw pass after pass and completed them with surprising regularity. Four of the passes turned into touchdowns and in the first half Connors scooped up a loose ball and reeled off twenty yards for another score.

The game was contrary to any rule of sensible football. With the ball wet and soggy from a rain that fell continuously, it seemed from the start as if the game was to be a battle of straight football. However, from the start of the game both teams threw passes and threw them often. Middlebury tried any number and the combination of Hinman to McNeil was good for several long gains. With all this open work it was a foregone conclusion that there would be many fumbles and the ball changed hands rapidly.

As has been the case all season the backfield were unable to back up the line. Time after time the Blue jerseys broke through forcing the passer to run back only to see a pass sail over their heads into the waiting arms of a Violet man. Ehlert played an unusually good game, stopping everything through the center of the line and making a beautiful play when he caught an N.Y.U. back in an open field. Captain Potter played well at end and Brosowsky after being knocked out in the first half, practically finished the game.

Captain Potter won the toss and elected to kick off. Hardly had the game started when the first break of the game occured. Connors returned a punt and after three plays Whittemore dropped back to kick. However several Violet men were on top of the play and the kick was blocked, White falling on the ball on Middlebury's twenty-seven yard line. On the first play Connors made twenty-two yards around the end, but the Blue line held here and on the last down Whittemore intercepted a pass one yard from the goal. Whittemore immediately kicked and it was N.Y.U.'s ball on the thirty-seven yard line. Again the Middlebury line held and an attempted place kick was blocked and recovered by Mullen. On the next play Kelley recovered a fumble and it was the Violet's ball. Several thrusts at the line followed by two long passes brought a touchdown.

After the kickoff Ehlert recovered a fumble and after several plays Potter went back to try a field goal. The old mystery kick failed to leave the ground as the period ended.

To start the second quarter Wiley broke through the line, intercepted a pass and almost broke away for a touchdown. On the next three plays Middlebury grounded several passes and Whittemore punted. Finding the Blue line impregnable N.Y.U. again opened up and two beautiful passes netted the Violet another score. Middlebury again kicked off and N.Y.U. finding themselves unable to gain

IT BODES WELL

The victory which the freshman eleven scored over the University of Vermont yearlings Saturday is worthy of more than passing notice. It was pleasant that the Blue should be the first to triumphantly wave its colors in the various contests of the year with our ancient rivals. But more than that, Saturday's game was another marked indication of Middlebury's rise to the supremacy of the gridirons of the state. The men who played for both institutions Saturday are those who will form the nucleus of the varsity elevens in the next three years. The fact that the Middlebury yearlings so clearly outplayed those of the University is a pleasant foreboding of what may be the state of affairs in the future.

Does not some inventive soul on this campus possess genius enough to write a new cheer? Those which we have are all right insofar as they go, but the old adage that "variety is the spice of life" is true in the realm of cheering as well as in other things and the fact remains that we have no variety. At every rally, every cheer practice and every game it is the same old thing — a long Middlebury for the team, an X-ray yell for the captain and a sky-rocket for the coach. This year we even lack a "split yell right through here." Middlebury needs a good new cheer. The cheerleaders would welcome any that you have to offer.

The general attitude of those in the Middlebury stands at most games is that of so many wooden soldiers. Not a word is said, not a voice is lifted except upon strenuous exhortations of the cheer-leaders. In the dormitories, and on the campus, the attitude of the student body is good. We are behind the team to a man. But once we get into the stands, we seem to be stricken dumb. Let's come to life and "talk it up" to the team all the time.

"SOCIAL" STANDING

One so often hears the complaint that Middlebury lacks high social standing. Social functions with the exception of dances and an occasional tea are practically unknown here. The women's college has a larger per cent of these gatherings than the men's college, but even on the few occasions when we do meet socially, only a certain group is present. The rest of the students are unable to come into contact with the atmosphere of real social refinement and distinction which such functions create. But there is a reason why we, perhaps, are wise in not trying to emphasize the social niceties to a greater extent. Middlebury is a democratic college offering self help to many students. The very ones who do not now attend the limited social functions would be the ones who could never do much in this line at college due to the expense. So many students are either practically dependent upon their own resources or else upon the limited resources at home, that every penny has to be wisely spent. As much as we enjoy the more aesthetic pleasures derived from social gatherings, still the plainer side of our daily life is more necessary now and in later years. For those who are making a struggle to get an education is set a standard of values which differs greatly from the standard of people who do not know the meaning of sacrifice and self-denial.

But because necessity demands that we pay less attention to the sometimes rather superficial forms of good society, we need never forget that after all we are ladies and gentlemen. Courtesy is an outward expression of gentility which is seriously lacking on our campus at times. The neglect of this form of good breeding is certainly more unfortunate than the neglect of social functions. It takes no more time to be courteous, and certainly the resulting atmosphere is more agreeable. Some of the students of this college are stamping themselves as illbred merely because they fail to be courteous. To say "Hullo" to a member of the faculty is not the best of good manners, and for a young man to fail to touch his cap to a professor or to a woman is likewise a mark of ill breeding. Middlebury needs more courtesy on the campus and on the street. The social standing of the college can never be high as long as there are students who are deliberately discourteous to each other and the faculty. To be other than courteous here means that you are discourteous outside, and you must remember that people judge Middlebury by YOU!

PLAYING FAIR

College libraries exist for the common good of all students. The service they render, although to a great extent unappreciated, is enormous. Imagine the cost of a college education if one were obliged to own each reference book which it is now our privilege to use at the library. The library contains many volumes which supplement our courses, and to which many of us go each day for a broader survey of subject matter than can be gained by the most assiduous studying of one text book.

The library goes a step further to assist us — it groups together all those books which refer to the same course, on a reserved shelf, in order to save us the time of hunting for them in the stacks and to insure us of access to them at any time, under certain regulations.

These regulations are made with the idea of giving everyone an equal opportunity to use the books. If there were none, any student might take the book from the library, though it be an only copy, and keep it for a period of two weeks. In justice to all, this has been prevented. There is no necessity for giving the details of the system of "reserve books," but there is, we think, dire necessity for a word of comment about the use and abuse of it.

Consider this situation: a class of forty with an assignment in a book of which there is only one copy on the reserve shelves. We all know the course which should be followed in such a case, but in many such cases the book has been known to disappear mysteriously, leaving practically the entire class without access to it.

Is this playing the game? Decidedly not! Let us think of the other fellow, and of the inconvenience which such a selfish act on our part will cause him. The act may be accidental or intentional on our part, but whatever the cause, the result is the same. Let it be to each one of us a responsibility to see that each book which we remove from the reserve shelves be returned at the proper time. By so doing — by playing fair with our fellow students, we will all help one another and one more campus problem will be solved.

SIDELINE SNATCHES

A small but enthusiastic group of Middlebury rooters bemoaned the fact that once more they would be forced to sit through a drizzling rain. One could hardly say that the efforts of Jupiter Pluvius dampened their spirits.

The N. Y. U. team started right off by uncorking a very brilliant aerial attack which the Black Panther eleven failed to solve until a vast amount of damage was done.

The Blue team sure missed "Mike" Furbush when the scrappy Middlebury center was forced from the game with a badly twisted knee. We regret that "Mike" will not be back in the fray again this season since an X-ray taken that evening showed two small fractures.

Bill Whitney, who was substituted for "Mike" but up a fine game on the defense, but due to his inexperience was a trifle uncertain on his passes.

Johnnie McNeill put up one of the prettiest games of the season at left half on both offense and defense. Twice he snatched the slippery oval from out the air on the dead run. A like number of times did he outguess the N. Y. U. passer and intercept the well covered passes of the Purple.

Whittemore playing his first full game at quarterback gave good exhibition of field generalship. The position is not a new one to "Whit" since he came here with a fine record as a prep school quarterback.

Hinman, of whom much was expected, gave a fine exhibtion as a defensive back but the slippery field and uncertain footing prevented any end running, which is George's long suit.

Middlebury's cheering section was small but peppy. With the game going against the Blue, Cheerleader McLeod experienced some difficulty in extracting cheers toward the end of the game. The whole atmosphere of the game was not conducive to "pep".

DRAMA REVIEW

Two Crooks and a Lady
Cast

Miller (crook)	Henry Brooks '28
Lucille (crook)	Dorothy Kirk '28
Mrs. Simms Vane	Alice Nelson '28
Miss Jones	Helen Northrop '28
Police	Chas. Westfall '28 Lewis Scott '28

"Two Crooks and a Lady" was presented before the Dramatic club Thursday night, October 24. The play centers about a rich invalid who is the possessor of a valuable diamond necklace. The two crooks attempt to steal this but are outwitted by the old lady although she cannot leave her chair nor move her head to watch them. Miss Nelson had this role and her interpretation of it was by far the most successful feature of the play. Miss Northrop's acting was satisfactory, likewise Miss Kirk's, though not decisively so. Mr. Brooks was a rather leisurely crook — the reason for which someone gave as his frequent need to search for the prompter as well as the necklace. Messrs. Scott and Westfall were not on the stage long enough to prove their dramatic abilities. The play was amusing, but, save for Miss Nelson's delightful acting, was sadly lacking in finish.

My Lady's Lace
Cast

Father	Forest Pratt '28
Daughter	Katherine Burtis '28
Nurse	Dorothy Abel '28
Suitor	Clarence Young '28

"My Lady's Lace," the second play of the evening was presented by Pauline Cross '27. The setting of the play is Dutch. Its dialogue is delightful, and its simple plot is based on revealing the foppish shortcomings of a young man who wishes to marry into a rich family. Miss Abel and Miss Burtis were very fine indeed in their respective roles and Mr. Pratt was successful as an irate father. Perhaps Mr. Young's part held the most promising potentialities and, if so, he made good use of them. Every moment of his time on the stage he was the sophisticated, affected and sissified youth that his part demanded, and the audience has not yet ceased to sing his praises. It was not his acting alone, however, that made the play the unqualified success that it was. In every detail of staging, of costuming and of memorizing, Miss Cross' production was satisfying and commendable.

I. K. L.

The Middlebury line looked like the line of old and the times when Meehan backs slipped through for gains were few. Wiley, Ehlert, Mullen and Brosowsky surely looked good in there. This boy Wiley with two more years of 'varsity playing ahead of him is certain to be one of the best guards Middlebury has ever had.

Clipping from behind was in evidence throughout the game but the protests of the Middlebury men did not seem to stop it. Such tactics are not indicative of good sportsmanship.

The Middlebury team seemed tired and weary but never lack in fight.

"Kennie" Anderson '25, came down out of the stand and led a cheer in his characteristic manner to the delight of the Alumni present. If the rest of the section had had as much pep throughout the game as Ken it would have drowned out the N. Y. U. cheering.

One of the best plays of the game was made by Whittemore in the fourth quarter. Connors, the N. Y. U. halfback got loose on a criss-cross play and had outdistanced both his interference and the Middlebury backs when "Whit" in a last Herculean effort left his feet and knocked the Purple ball carrier out of bounds on the five yard line where the Blue line held for downs.

"FAITH" IS SUBJECT AT VESPER SERVICE

Rev. Robert H. Morris of Haddonfield, New Jersey, Gives Inspiring Sermon at Sunday Vespers

Rev. Robert A. Morris of Haddonfield, N. J., speaking at vespers Sunday evening, said, "My message is essentially one of Christian faith, by which I do not mean merely trust or security nor a vague belief that all will come out right in the end, but real Christian faith.

"Of course, there are grades of faith. Each man must often stumble, fall and rise again. One must have many experiences before one reaches the ultimate peak of faith. But there are two misconceptions concerning faith which do much to retard its growth. It is said that faith is something which weak-minded people substitute for reason, something no strong-minded person is ever guilty of entertaining. The other misconception is widely different in nature, but just as wrong, that is, that faith is a gift which one may or not possess, as it pleases the gods that be.

"Concerning the former of these statements, it must be admitted that there are strong men who do not have faith, but such men as Dr. Fosdick and Dr. Russell Conwell of Philadelphia, though selected to be among the twelve greatest minds of America, certainly have faith. No brain in all the great period of the first century of Christ's church is to be compared with that of Saul of Tarsus. He affected the thinking of all time, and we have yet to arrive at the proper conception of the intellectual power of Christ.

"Concerning the second misconception, God would not make faith so necessary if it were to be possessed by only a few. Many, like Shakespeare's Horatio, 'will not let faith take hold of them.' Faith comes by beginning and going step by step till we come to the fulness of faith. If a man analyze life in a scientific manner, he will agree that to give life, and sometime it must have been given, there must be life, a power to generate and to care for the future, and we may call this power God. If we study life we see that there is a plan in it, a plan culminating in the placing on earth of Him whom Shakespeare called 'the Blessed Mary's son', a man whose influence on mankind has no comparison, from whom we may gain a personal faith. By such a process may man come to the place where he could cry out, 'My Lord and my God.'

"Is it not true that religious faith challenges the best in us? Causes us to go out and fight the battles of right? Through faith may we become the Men of God most needed in the world at present. Do you really want to influence your times? You may make a success in this or that, but the greatest influence is lacking unless your life has undergone a spiritual experience. One needs a yearning after spiritual things, and then they shall be ours."

STATE SERIES OPENS; U. V. M. VS. NORWICH

Close Battle Expected at Northfield; Cadets Have Strong Team

By Dana S. Hawthorne

The first game of the Green Mountain State series will be played on Sabine Field Saturday when Norwich entertains the University of Vermont at Northfield. Indications are that the contest will be nip and tuck throughout with possibly the Soldiers having a slight edge on the Green and Gold. Vermont, who usually gives but passing thought to her annual encounter with Norwich, is represented by one of the weakest teams she has had in years, while Coach Laird has succeeded in producing an eleven that is outstanding among Norwich teams. The Maroon line, averaging nearly 200 pounds, is not only powerful and fast but it is supported by a backfield that shows great promise. Although the Cadets lost to Dartmouth and New Hampshire, they surprised sport critics by blanking Tufts two weeks ago. While their showing last Saturday against the weak Lowell Textile team was not especially impressive, the low margin of victory may be attributed to the fact that much of their strength was being held in reserve for U. V. M. this week. In Andrews, Coach Laird has a back of exceptional ability and Vermont will do well to watch his tactics.

Vermont's team, which thus far has beaten only Clarkson, must not be underrated. It lacks experience and co-ordination of line and backfield, but its performance in holding Springfield several times in the shadow of its goal posts shows that it has pluck. Norwich will find a stubborn defense when she attempts to pierce the Green and Gold line. In the backfield, Tarpey is a man who will bear watching.

Whichever team wins, the game is certain to be bitterly contested. Norwich sees hopes of a State title this year and will stake all on Saturday's battle. Vermont, chagrined at her defeat at the hands of Middlebury last year, hopes to recover the title once more. A special train will carry the Vermont student body to Northfield.

Hears World Series Games Through Vest Pocket Radio

A student at Stevens recently constructed a radio set to fit his vest pocket, took it to class with him and under the eyes of his watching and unsuspecting professors received the worlds series games, play by play, giving out the results to his classmates. This vest pocket edition should help to while away many long, dry lecture periods.

U. V. M. Football Schedule Announced

University of Vermont football schedule for 1926 as announced is as follows:

Sept. 25—Columbia at N. Y.
Oct. 2—Syracuse at Syracuse.
Oct. 9—Clarkson at Burlington.
Oct. 16—Springfield at Burlington.
Oct. 23—Tufts at Medford, Mass.
Oct. 30—Norwich at Burlington.
Nov. 6—R. P. I. at Burlington.
Nov. 13—Middlebury at Middlebury.

The University of California has instituted a course in "dumbell" English. All entering students are required to take an examination to see if they can write 500 words of simple English clearly and correctly. The failures—incidently, the majority—must take a special course in elementary composition for which they pay a tuition fee and receive no credit. The purpose of this movement is to guarantee that no student who is nuable to wrte straight forward English shall do higher university work.

Prof. Hathaway Is to Head State Music Federation

A group of representative and recognized leaders in music in the State met at the Hotel Vermont in Burlington Monday to form the Vermont Branch of the National Federation of Music Clubs. Mrs. William Arms Fisher of Boston, chairman of the department of education of the National Federation, gave an address and assisted in organizing.

Prof. L. J. Hathaway of Middlebury heads the club as president. The other officers elected are: First vice president, Mrs. J. W. Votey of Burlington; second vice president, Mrs. R. A. Brush of St. Albans; third vice president, Miss Gladys Gale of Barre; secretary Mrs. Pamelia Powell of Middlebury; treasurer, George M. Hogan of St. Albans; parliamentarian, Judge Frank L. Fish of Vergennes; secretary, Miss Mary Watkins of Rutland.

It is expected that music clubs will be formed in various communities in the State. About 50 persons were present Monday and they seemed anxious to become a part of the National Federation of Music Clubs.

Plenty of Action At Freshman Rally for U.V.M.

The Middlebury - U.V.M. Freshman football rally was held in McCullough Gymnasium last Friday evening with a good attendance from both sides of the hill. Following cheering led by the Freshman leaders, Boll and Gazdagh, Joe Novotny '27, introduced the speakers of the evening, "Prexy" Moody, Dean Wiley, Prof. Kingsley and Capt. Webber. Entertainment was furnished by the Freshman Band, and by George Meyers '29 who danced the Charleston.

"New Student" Criticizes Fraternity Rushing

The deadly seriousness of fraternity rushing is a joke, a sad one. Fraternities are necessary in many schools, that there may be handy divisions in the social units; that is about all. But many make them Stepping-Stones to Exclusiveness, or Social Prestige. All attention has then to go to the feet that they may not slip. No attention is left for heart or head. Friendship does not go by fraternity connections; it springs accidentally from mysterious sources, not so shallow as to be accessible to pasteboard invitations. Fraternity through "fraternities" is the Bunk. It may, and it mayn't spark. The best achievement of a fraternity is that men are found to live together who will not saw each other with the most obvious differences of habits and of tastes. Too bad, then, that in the frenzy for distinguishment, for the high opinion of other people, we pursue the highest "rating," we forego development, and our high opinion of ourselves.—New Student.

The Datmouth football team has the distinction of having a high scholarship rank. The average standing of the eleven men is just a little below the Phi Beta Kappa minimum.

CAMPUS GRID DOPESTER SPURNS SIGNAL HONOR

By Pete Prophet '26

Before launching into the technicalities of my distinguished profession, I wish to take this means of thanking those of my admirers who so kindly wired congratulations on my success in picking Dartmouth to wallop Harvard last week. I might add, that the undergraduates at Hanover were so pleased with my prognostication that I have been offered the position of Sporting Editor of the "Dartmouth." I refuse to accept it and will continue to predict for the CAMPUS.

Now to our muttons. The football situation is becoming complex. In fact even so great an authority as myself becomes at times perturbed. Of course the headliner this week is Yale-Army and I am always shy of the old Army game. I picked the Army to beat Notre Dame and I picked Yale to beat Brown, but when these two come together I am phazed. Neither team will score a decisive victory but I think the Army may have a slight edge on the Blue. A drop kick may decide it so I'm going to say Army 10, Yale 7.

Cornell is not going to find an easy victim in Columbia especially if that fellow Pease gets back in the line-up. However, a card I received from Dobie last Easter said that he was confident. Red Grange's visit to Philadelphia may jostle the Quakers some but I look for a Penn victory again although I advise my friends not to bet heavily on this match.

Another contest over which I have lost much sleep is this little scrap up at Northfield. Vermont is going to be beaten. I am going to risk allowing Vermont to score, partly swayed by the fact that it was at Vermont that I prepared for college. For the benefit of those who cannot attend I shall pick this game by quarters.

Frosh Eleven Has No Game This Week-End

Coach Reigelman's freshman eleven has an idle Saturday this week but will swing into action again on November 7 when it meets Williston Seminary at Williston, Mass. On account of the great amount of time that fraternity rushing takes, the coach has allowed his men to have a complete rest from practice for a few days.

After the showing made against the Vermont yearlings Saturday it now seems entirely possible the frosh may go through the remainder of the season undefeated. Thus far the Dartmouth freshmen are the only ones who have downed the Black Panther cubs, and in fact, are the only ones who have crossed the Blue goal line.

Ellen Rowley '27, Chosen For Kaleidoscope Staff

Miss Ellen Rowley of Richford, Vermont, was elected Organization and Special Editor for the Women's college on the staff of the 1927 Kaleidoscope at a recent meeting of the Annual Board. She assumes the position left vacant by the transference of Miss Eleanor Manley of Brattleboro, Vt., from that department to the position of Associate Editor.

Amherst Undergraduates Prefer Small Student Body

At a recent vote conducted by the Amherst Student, the undergraduates of that institution overwhelmingly voted down the prospect of expanding their college. The ideal number for a college body was placed at six hundred, and the development of one's individuality was thereby upheld to be more important than greater athletic possibilities.

The football team from the University of Washington is going to Canada Oct. 31 to play the University of British Columbia at a game of rugby. It will probably draw much sporting comment.

Finals in the college golf tournament are to be played this week.

STUDENT FORUM HAS BEEN REORGANIZED

Weekly Discussions Will Be Held Every Sunday at Cong't'al Church

The student's forum is a forum in fact this year as well as in name. It will not be a series of lectures this year as it was last, but it will be a period open for discussion on various topics, and will be directed at times by members of the faculty, and at times by members of the senior class. A series of problems have been drawn up by the students interested, and a temporary list adopted by the committee in charge. A mimeographed copy of this list will be distributed to the members of the student body. The aim of the forum is to get away from the class room atmosphere and the discussion will always follow the problem agreed upon. It is not necessary that the problems be religious, but most of them will have a Christian approach. The continuance and success of the forum is dependent entirely on the active interest shown by the student body.

The main benefits of the forum are an outlet to expression and a stimulus which comes from contact with other persons, in which it fills a vital need of the college.

The forum meets every Sunday in the auditorium of the Congregational church at twelve o'clock promptly. It lasts from thirty minutes to three-quarters of an hour, always closing by twelve forty-five which leaves students plenty of time to get back to their halls for dinner.

The committee in charge of the forum is as follows: Professor Thompson, chairman; William Hade '26; Milo Lathrop '26; Florence Smith '26 Margaret Doty '26.

Arthur W. Peach '09, professor of English at Norwich University, has been granted a leave of absence for the year 1925-26. He will spend his time in graduate study at Columbia.

N. Y. U. Aerial Attack Overcomes Panther, 33-0

against the stubborn Blue line, punted. The punt rolled over the goal line and it was Middlebury's ball on the twenty yard line. On the next play Hinman lost the wet ball and Connors scooped it up and galloped twenty-five yards for a score. The Violet made one more touchdown through the air in this period on another long pass to Connors, which he caught at least ten yards from a Blue jersey, and ran for a touchdown. The half ended N.Y.U. 27, Middlebury 0.

Middlebury again kicked to open the half and N.Y.U. immediately started the aerial game which had been working so well. However, the New Yorkers were finding it increasingly difficult to complete their passes. After several tries Connors tossed one to Kelley for a twenty yard gain. After getting his hands on a pass only to see it roll out McNeil intercepted a throw and it was Middlebury's ball. A beautiful pass Hinman to McNeil, went for 20 yards, but Whittemore was again forced to kick. An exchange of punts gave N. Y.U. the ball on their own twenty-two yard line and a run and several passes took the ball to Middlebury's ten yard line. Here again the line held and a pass was grounded over the goal line. With the ball taken out Whittemore again elected to pass, taking a desperate chance to get a man free. However, O'Neil intercepted a pass, bringing it to the 26 yard line as the quarter ended.

On the first play Connors tossed the ball and Kelley took the ball over the goal line for the final touchdown of the afternoon. For the remainder of the game neither team was able to get near enough to score although N.Y.U. held the ball for two plays seven yards away from the Blue goal posts. However the New Yorkers were unable to pierce the line and a pass was grounded over the line giving the Blue the ball out of danger. Both teams exchanged the ball through intercepted passes and the game ended with the ball in Middlebury's possession in midfield.

The summary:

completed forwards, the ball was given to the Vermonters on downs. At this point the Vermont quarter-back called for a forward pass which ended disastrously for the Green team since Henry not only intercepted the pass but advanced it to the fifteen yard line, from which a forward to Hellauer resulted in the second touchdown. Henry booted another point on to the score as the half ended.

The second half started with a kick to Willis who was tackled on the Blue's twenty yard line. Middlebury fumbled, Vermont recovering. Then Willis intercepted an attempted Green forward, the ball was rushed twice, after which Willis kicked to the Vermont twenty yard line. Middlebury received one of the decisive breaks of the game at this point when the Green quarterback fumbled the ball and Ransom did the johnny-on-the-spot act, recovering the ball on the ten yard line. A few line plunges put Henry in position to carry the leather over for the third touchdown.

Willis kicked off again and the Vermont back was brought down on his twenty five yard line. After making a first down the Green and Gold attempted a forward pass which Ransom intercepted and returned thirty-four yards. He was forced outside on the one yard line. After another penalty for being offside, Hellauer smashed through center for the final touchdown. No point was made after the goal.

In the last minutes of play Vermont made her only real threat to score. The Vermont fullback, Robbins, intercepted a pass on his thirty yard line and tore forty yards. By a series of short gains Vermont gained two first downs and the game ended with the ball in Vermont's possession on the seven yard line.

Harvard

Harvard introduced a new cheer at the Dartmouth game Saturday. It is called the "Ooorah" cheer. It merely consists of a long ooorah followed by the name of some player. The cheer requires perfect silence for a moment before it is given, and for a moment afterwards to bring out its full effect. The cheer will be printed at the top of copies of all the Harvard songs that are to be distributed at all Harvard games.

Washington State

The Washington State campus has become overflooded by many cheap cars that are nothing more than wrecks and are degrading to the looks of the college. These cars are also dangerous to life and limb on the campus, so the students have formed a committee composed partly of students and partly of faculty members to investigate the problem and to pick out those machines that are mechanically dangerous or ugly or freakish. They will put them on a list for future reference.

Bates

Bates is planning a very ambitious debating program for this year. The probable schedule includes debates to be held at Lewiston with the University of California, the University of Pennsylvania, the University of Arizona, and Yale. The peak of the season is a probable western tour, including a dozen colleges and extending as far west as Minnesota and Iowa.

Dartmouth

At the fall meeting of the Dartmouth trustees it was voted that measures should be taken for the immediate construction of a library building. It was voted that the president should appoint a committee for investigation and study of all matters relating to this matter, which committee should look well into the future in drawing up its plans. The meeting also accepted the offer of Howard Clark Davis to build a varsity field house to provide headquarters for the Athletic Association, conference rooms for the various coaching staffs, headquarters for varsity "D" men, and headquarters for various visiting teams, at a cost not exceeding one hundred thousand dollars.
